Breeder or rescue | Conversation guide

Record facts, supporting documentation and uncertainty; do not rely only on confident claims.

Organization / contact

Conversation date

Animal / litter (optional)

Follow-up date

Background and ancestry

What parentage or history can be documented? What is unknown or uncertain?

What evidence supports descriptions of ancestry or wolf content?

Health, experience and individual needs

Which health records can be shared, and which questions are still open?

What early experiences, routines or behavioral preferences have been observed?

What are the animal’s known support needs and stressors?

No single answer guarantees a responsible source. Keep original records and ask independent follow-up questions.

Breeder or rescue | Placement and follow-up

Be prepared to discuss whether this is a good match for the individual animal.

Placement and accountability

What does the breeder or rescue ask about legal ownership, housing, containment and daily care?

What written terms govern placement, return or rehoming?

What ongoing support is offered? What is not included?

Evidence and follow-up

Question / record requested / how or when to verify:

Question / record requested / how or when to verify:

Question / record requested / how or when to verify:

My decision-making notes

What would I still need to know before committing, and am I comfortable slowing down?

An online directory listing is not a breeder certification or endorsement. For more questions, use the separate free Wolfdog Village Breeder Evaluation app.